Fred Phillips

Judge Fred. Philips.

JUDGE FRED. PHILIPS was born June 14th, 1838, in the county of Edgecombe, N. C., and has ever since continued to reside there. After graduating from the University in the Class of 1858 (being the youngest member of that large class), he spent two years in Yadkin County in the study of law under Chief Justice Richmond M. Pearson. He obtained his license to practise in the courts of the State before the actual outbreak of the war.

When the war began, he entered the army and was appointed to the position of adjutant of the Thirtieth North Carolina Regiment, which regiment formed part of the command of Jackson in the Army of Northern Virginia. Judge Philips participated in many memorable battles of the war, and was twice wounded, once in the bloody battle at Sharpsburg, in September, 1862, and again in November, 1863, at Kelly's Ford on the Rappahannock. This last was a disabling wound and incapacitated him for active service in the field thereafter.

In January, 1866, with a constitution weakened from exposure and wounds, he undertook the practise of law in the county of his birth, and of his ancestors for more than a hundred years. In the same year he was appointed clerk and master in equity for Edgecombe County, and was elected prosecuting solicitor in the county courts of Nash County. These two positions he filled with credit and energy until the old judicial system was abolished by the Constitution of 1868. From that time on his practise rapidly increased, becoming both laborious and lucrative.

In the general election for State officers in November, 1882, he was chosen by popular vote one of the eight judges of the Superior Court. He gave up a fine and lucrative private practise to accept this position, which came to him unsought and unsolicited. He served his full term of eight years without once missing court or failing to open on the first day of the term.

After serving his term on the bench he never returned to active practise, but devoted his time and energies to agricultural interests and other matters.

Judge Philips is a loyal son of the University, a member of the Board of Trustees, and one who does not consider his duty done when he has attended a meeting. He has always taken an abiding interest in everything concerning and connected with the University, and we are glad of this opportunity to show in some measure our appreciation of his services.

The University Student.

BROOKS ADAMS says: "The Oriental trade has enriched every community that has controlled it. Constantinople, then the Italian cities, then Holland, then London, rose to world-centers of wealth and power by this trade."

When the Panama Canal is open for ships, the Oriental trade will pass along the Southern Coast. Some city in the South will be the center of this business. This city, following the law, will spring into large wealth and power. This city in the South will then become the point of world interest, wealth, and power. Such a city always lifts the community into large things. Such is the law of destiny. The great era in the life of the South is just ahead of us.

It is a large and noble life that opens to the young man to-day. How shall he fit himself to take advantage of the opening? The old method, good as it was, evidently can not meet the demands. Then the leader in our public life was the politician; the leader in our social life was the landlord. The South produced thus two types of men. The politician was the center of power; the landlord was the center of culture.

The South is now confronted with a complex condition and a deeper problem. Our destiny demands a new type of great man. It is all right to defend the local attachment, but we must understand that the deeper attachments are the larger relations. It is right to nourish the local interest, but we must understand that the universal interest is supreme.

The next great man in the South will reveal these virtues: He will know power, the power of industrialism, and will be vitally associated with it. He will have the ability to face the facts, to look the conditions of the hour squarely in the face, and to get his rule of action from these conditions. He will, also, be able to look far along the line—a thousand years in the past and a hundred years in the future. These stern virtues—power, intellectual honesty, culture—will be the marks that differentiate the next type of great man.

Business, science, and philosophy are the sources of these virtues. Business gives us power; science teaches us to be honest; philosophy trains us to look far and deep. Where do we find these three fused into living spirit? Talk with the strongest student in the University and he will reveal to you this living spirit. This ideal is the very bread of life to him. It is an inspiring privilege and a fearful responsibility to teach the University student of to-day.

The Votary.

Sweet Melissa, shy, demure,
In her dove-like gown of gray,
Things of earth can not allure;
Churchward doth she wend her way.

Fair Melissa's looks are bent,
On the ground with gaze discreet,
She, dear maid, in keeping Lent
Would forswear a pleasure sweet.

For Melissa's eyes are bright
And she loves to dart their beams,
Marking with an arch delight
Men, like moths, draw near their gleams.

How the solemn organ peals,
And the sunset light is shed
On Melissa as she kneels,
Folded hands and drooping head.

Fair Melissa, cruel saint!
Thou, too, kneel with fervent sighs;
Hearken to a suppliant's plaint,
Thou, alas! have used my eyes.

From the

SUBLIME

To the

RIDICULOUS

The Class of 1904.

HISTORY is made up of the lives of great men. A constant compiling of wonderful deeds has brought the historian into possession of valuable data, for which the Department of Physics of this University has offered a prize in order that that department might be able to demonstrate more clearly Jos's Laws of Gravity. But how-ever much of this data, many famous deeds of the class room and athletic field will be left to the tradition of Cumming generations, yet in the prep schools "to keep alive."

In the beginning we were without form and void, and darkness was upon the face of every one. This darkness descended upon us from the Sophomoric obscurity, for in those days when the Sophomoric spirit said "Let there be light," there was darkness. A man—one Cox—was chosen to lead us, and from thenceforth our name was written in large letters upon the walls, among which we dwelt, and in all the public places. "Fresh '04." In that day, one hundred days were as long as an examination paper in English. One hundred days passed, and this was called the Fall term.

On our return from home Christmas, each man having called himself home about Chapel Hill, we were informally notified at University Station by officious characters that we were still Freshmen and long before we heard "Four Days" at Chapel Hill (beginning) these officious characters had given us a clearer conception of Chapel Hill.

The night of February 22d came and we were all "invited" to participate in a sister-bosom parade in Cameron avenue. In this Newton Rankin and Oberon adorned themselves with great credit to their ancestors. Honors were awarded them to those only who were "on the hill;" many of the number were at this time holding services in the old Episcopal Church, while others had chosen a more comfortable life. One hundred and fifty days passed, and this was called the Spring Term. And the Fall Term and the Spring Term were counted as one year.

In the second year we returned, feeling the great responsibility that rested upon us. That of helping those who needed help. In those days the Y. M. C. A. had established no "Bureau of Information," hence the responsibility of seeing that Freshmen were properly registered fell upon us. Kenan, from "the East," was chosen to supervise the great work of that year, and throughout it all we watched over the floral youth in the darkest hours, though it was sometimes wondered "if that Guy would take a crack at us?"

In the third year the great loss in our number was only exceeded by the number who fell on psychology. A man from Moore, called Melver, governed in that year.

Then the fourth year came, and no sooner had Robins been chosen to lead than many began to complain and demand that a sign be given them that they might be known from their inferiors. Accordingly, it was ordered that each man purchase a label for himself and, in addition, that each man have a likeness made of himself, and, in the end, to each clothe himself with a sombre robe and cover his head with a cap.

All things were done and every man went a different way for good or for bad, and we have reason to hope that each way was for good.

Historian

Class History.

THIS history is to be short, for there is no need to tell how the Class of '05 has done what other classes have done. It entered as a large class, but many are no longer in the race: Some quit; some distanced their running mates; some dropped behind; some fell in the running, and by sad hands they were borne away and laid to rest. But others have joined in the race.

The class has done its duty in furnishing men for the Alpha Theta Phi, to athletics, and to the inter-collegiate debating teams. It had the unique distinction to furnish a Freshman debater to one of these teams, which won a notable victory. The thing which the class should be pre-eminently proud of is that in its Sophomore year it had the forbearance and courage to declare against hazing. No other class had ever done this before. If succeeding classes will follow the example thus set, the future will bless '05 for lifting University life to a higher level.

HISTORIAN.

White and Blue.

(THE JUNIOR'S GIRL.)

The blue of her eyes
Is like summer skies
That should always shine above them ;
Or like ribbon blue
Of N. C. U.,
So how can I help but love them ?

Her hands so white
Are my delight—
If I only could but take them ;
But like white and blue
Of N. C. U.,
I never will forsake them.

JUNIOR CLASS

The Lesson
OF
Love

Sweet Innocence sat on the step by my side,
As the stars twinkled down from above;
In her heart was an infinite yearning to learn,
All my passion, to teach her to love.

“Thou art versed in the ways of the world,” quoth she,
“In its paths wilt thou teach me to rove?”
But the ways of the world were too sinful by far,
So I taught her the ways of true love.

“There ’s a charm for my soul in the songs of old bards,
To my heart they’re a treasure-trove.”
But my heart was not tuned to the music of these,
So I sang her a lyric of love.

“Foreign folk to my mind have a Babel of tongues,
I would know how their flections move.”
“Canst not read the soft looks in a fond lover’s eyes?”
And I taught her the language of love.

When her lesson was ended so soon, ah, too soon!
As the stars twinkled down from above,
I imprinted a kiss on her lips— and I found
She had learned all there was of love.

“Fresh.”

Goo!

“What——”

President Parker says I must not tell you much about his great Class of '07s. When there is nothing to say, say nothing, says he.

“Very good so far, but why?”

Because.

“Just because?”

Yep; because to write an account of the class would fill, with nonsense and farce, a great book. A book as long as “Lengthy” Jones. Yea, even would it be as voluminous as Doctor Raper’s “Colonial History of North Carolina.” The YACKETY YACK would stop yacking and the Magazine would blow up when brought into literary association with such rot.

“Explain more personally, please.”

It would savor, however Fresh, of so many bad eggs.

“True; I see.”

But since I’m preaching a prelude to a sermon I ought to say something to keep from belittling their littleness, at least giving the birthday and the time of burial.

“Of course; say it.”

The Fresh were born before they came here.

“Nope.”

Well, the Fresh have been born again, then.

“Created as infants, even now they are scarcely more than bib-babies. So professors let ‘em pass.”

It’s just like Dr. Hume said (when a Freshman failed in an attempt to disturb the tranquility of the third English class): “It is no wonder to me that a Freshman can’t keep from Shaking-his-sphere, but it is amazing to see prep. school stars come to the University and fade into utter insignificance.”

“The very idea; what behavior!”

Such a be-Cumming class, too.

“Such a Deal of Husseys they are.”

Hardly a Freeman in the bunch. I tell you they are a lot of Green Farmers and Gardeners. They don’t Nœe a darned dern neither.

“Listen: P-a-t-r-i-c-k! and M-a-c-k G-o-w-a-n! what excuses for Irish.”

Ye Katzensteins! stop your Mowen.

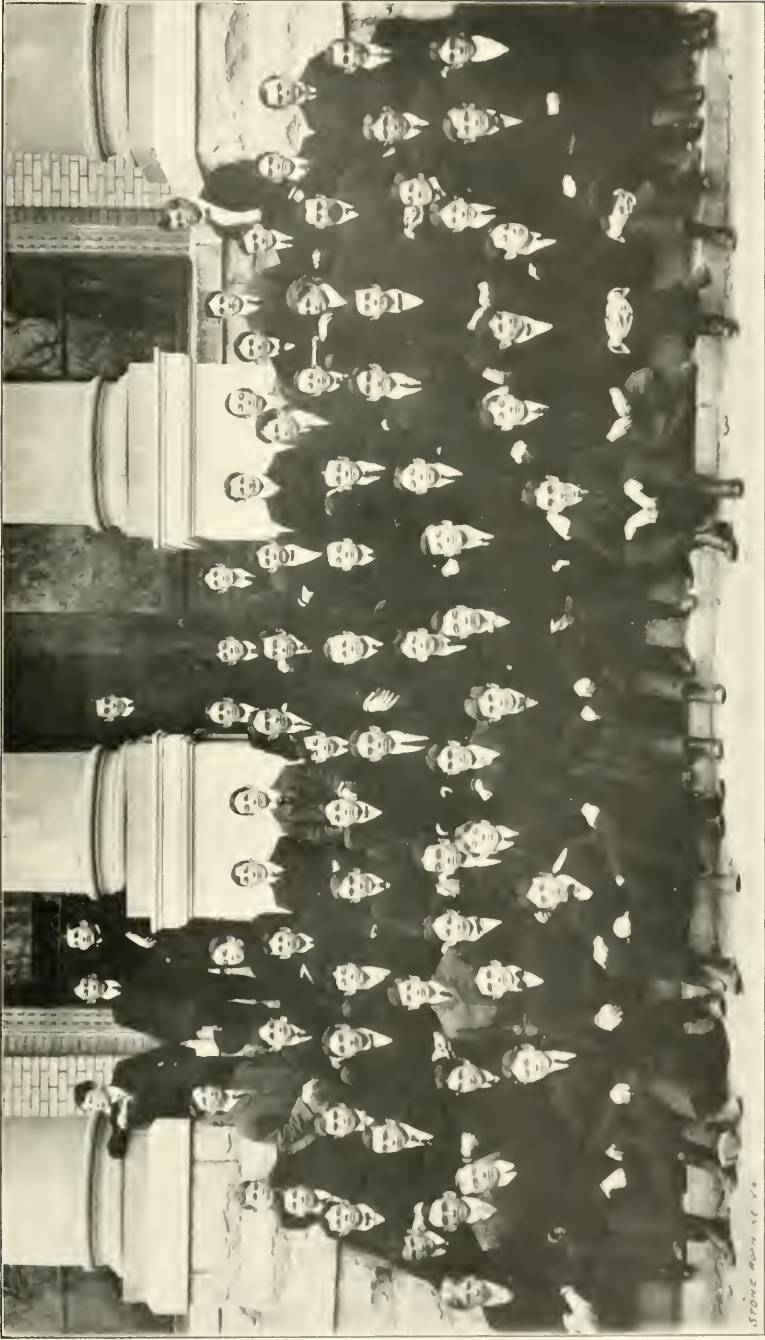

Ye “Rats!” scatter and scamper to your holes.

Under penalty of Payne——

Git——

Away with ye——

O’Berry yourselves!

To The College Bell.

When with the twilight's gathering gloom
Thy clear, deep tones float through my room,

O faithful College Bell !

Then slips my mind from all things near
To dream of things of yester-year.

And with fond fancies dwell

Before my eyes pass shadowy forms
Of mighty men who, through the storms
Of civil strife and hate,

Gave to their State all that was theirs,
Both goods and blood, and without fears
Were proud to share her fate.

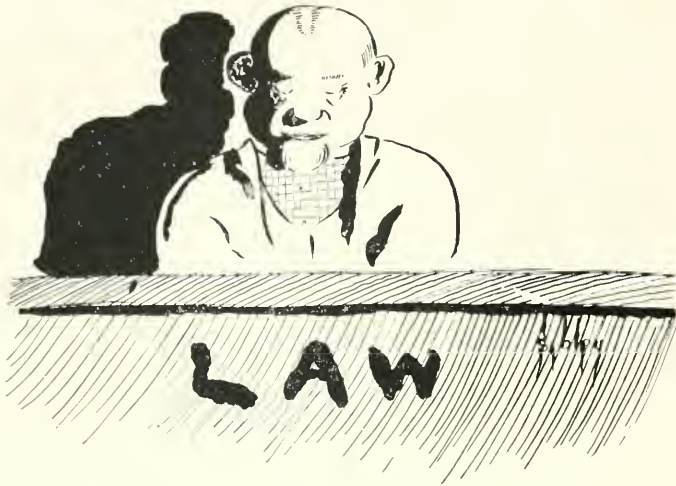

They trod this Campus which I tread,
Heard thy pure notes swell overhead
To call to them each day ;
From this same fountain did they drink
The strength that nerved them not to shrink
When duty showed the way.

Old Bell, may each full mellow note
That swells from thy pulsating throat

Remind me of these men,

That while I now prepare for life,
My aim may be throughout its strife
To be as they have been.

A planet lost and wand'ring wild and free,
No guiding pow'r to break its reckless spell
And bring it back to law and guide it well—
A ship upon a wintry-billowed sea
And tempest-tost toward a rocky lee
Far from both beacon-light and harbor-bell:
Conditions these, and who can not foretell
Destruction sure and fearful destiny?
So was my soul upon the sea of life;
As ark on flood without its gentle dove;
And planet-like it roamed 'mid storm and strife;
No sun or ray of light shone from above
Till thy dear soul—blest guiding star of life!
Led mine to Peace and Light and gave it Love!

LITERARY SOCIETIES

Philanthropic Society.

“Virtue, Liberty, Science.”

THE Philanthropic Society dates its beginning a few months only after the birth of the University; and its life has been as continuous as that of the University. The old Phi walked hand in hand with the University “through the valley of the shadow of death,” and just so to-day, it accompanies it in prosperity. The two ever keep apace. And the Phi (with its sister, the Di) has from the beginning been a vital part of the University. The strength of the University has always been measured by the strength of the two societies.

The portraits of the old members, that hang from the Society walls, testify that its past has been a great one. It is the present, however, that concerns us. What part does the Phi Society play in the University life to-day?

The Phi is stronger, more active, and a greater factor of the University now than it has ever been. The two societies were the founders of the library and are still its hearty supporters. They furnish two-thirds of the funds for the Star Lecture Course, and give their members free tickets to all the lectures. They get out a monthly magazine and give free subscription to each member. They are two-thirds responsible for the YACKETY YACK, the college annual. They give three inter-society debates each year free of all charges; and from one to three inter-collegiate debates. Of the eleven inter-collegiate debates contested in the last seven years, we have won eight: winning from Vanderbilt University three times, from Johns Hopkins twice, and from Georgia three times, allowing Georgia to win three times. The Phi and the Di Societies have gained for themselves a reputation for debating second to none in the United States. The two societies are now the managers of a banquet given at commencements, which has come to be one of the most interesting features of Commencement. The germ of the literary attainments of the University is seated in the two societies. But these are only some of the things in general, in which the Philanthropic Society contributes its part in the University.

The strength of the Phi Society, more in particular, lies in its dealings with the individual. The Society is an intellectual gymnasium where the young intellect is trained and hardened for the battle of life. Its lessons are lessons of truth and nobleness; and its traditions and surroundings are such as inspire its members to live the fullest, freest and best life.

PHILANTHROPIC LITERARY SOCIETY

PHI SOCIETY HALL

Dialectic Society.

“Love of Virtue and Science.”

THE Debating Society was organized by the students of the University on the 3d day of June, 1795. On the 2d day of July of the same year, under the leadership of Maurice Moore, the Society was divided; and the withdrawing members organized the Concord Society (now the Philanthropic). After the division, the older society retained the original name until some time in the following year, when the Debating Society became the Dialectic Society.

From her organization until the present, the Dialectic Society has had a continuous existence, her history, during these one hundred and nine years is one of which her friends are justly proud. Whether one considers her long list of illustrious members or her achievements in debate, she takes a high place as a literary society.

A mere list of the members of the Dialectic Society who have become distinguished would more than fill the limits of this article. From the long roll I mention only three: David L. Swain, James K. Polk, and Zebulon B. Vance. To number these three great Americans in its membership, would, in itself, be an enviable record for any literary society.

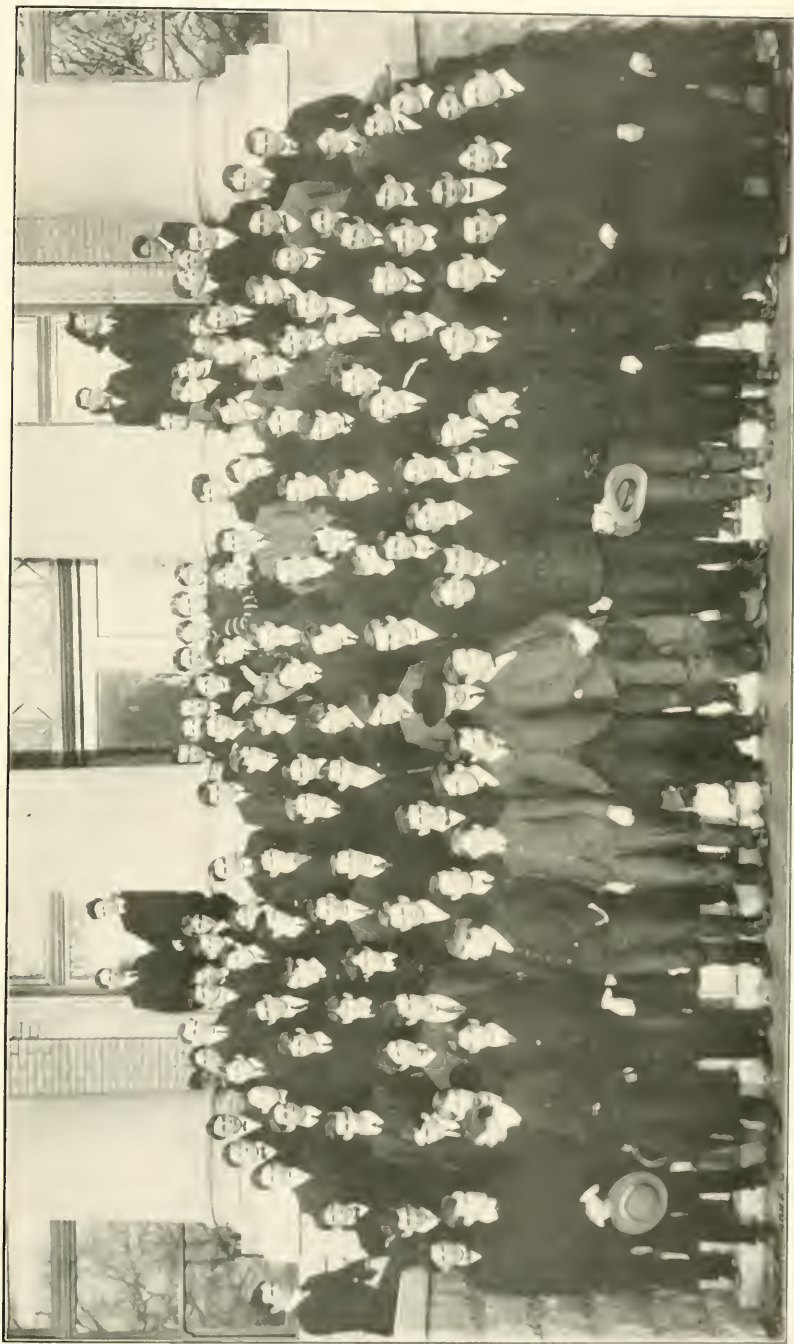

The Dialectic Society's claim to high rank as a literary society, however, is not based entirely upon the fame of her members who have become great after they left the University. In the inter-society debates with her sister society, the Philanthropic, her representatives have won their part of the honors. In our splendid series of inter-collegiate debates, she has done her full share toward winning for the University of North Carolina a reputation, which has made her, in this particular field, second to no other institution of learning in the South.

But the highest purpose of the Dialectic Society is not to produce excellent debaters. Her noblest aim is to promote among her own members a lasting friendship. This lofty aim is attained. In the meetings of the Society, they learn to feel a common interest. The result of such acquaintance and of such community of interest is a strong friendship among the members, which is not forgotten when they meet in the serious business of life.

Debate.

Debate is one of the most extraordinary ordinary practises in our life. It plays its part in the cross-road gossip as well as in the momentous discussions of senates. The lisping child employs it; and old age enforces it with a long and varied experience. In short, all sane persons debate; for reasoning implies debating. The writer once heard a fanatical preacher oppose debate on the ground that the Bible condemned it. Indeed, it seems that even this enthusiast would have felt that everyone of his sermons, however crude and desultory, involved debate; and in supporting his argument with the Holy Writ, he was debating.

But while debate is practical among all classes of men, it is in a democracy only that the able debater is exalted to his rightful position. In a monarchy, where the decree of the monarch is the supreme law of the land, discussion can be of little avail. It is in a country like ours, where the people are the ultimate source of all authority, that the skilful debater finds ample scope for the exercise of his power.

The primary function of the Literary Society, therefore, is to fit men to be informants of the people. With this purpose in view, they serve as the ally of good government; for the success of a democracy depends upon the intelligence of the people. The literary societies of this University, recognizing such to be their mission, point with just pride to their history as proof that they have been performing this mission. They have sent out presidents, senators, congressmen, diplomats, judges and governors.

This marked efficiency of the societies has been enhanced very much by participation in debate with three of the leading Southern universities: Georgia, Vanderbilt, and Johns Hopkins. They have had representatives in eleven inter-collegiate debates and, with the exception of three, have won all the contests.

With the inspiration of a splendid past, a membership never equalled, and an efficiency never excelled, the historic old Dialectic and Philanthropic Societies go forth to meet the future with an unflinching hope.

Sonnet.

If you could enter with the tender smile
That used to glad my heart in years long fled,
And lay your hand upon my weary head,
Too weary now for aught than dreams awhile ;
If you could come, and in the good old way
Call me caressing names long since unspoken,
Shedding upon my spirit, bruised and broken,
The gracious light of eyes that were my day ;
I would be tender, too, believe me, Sweet,
Like one who chances on the Spring's first flower,
And all the gentle words that e'er were said
I'd whisper to thee, and with eager feet
Would haste to bring thee gladness hour by hour ;
But what can dreams avail, since thou art dead ?

The Non-Frats.

THIS heading, we are perfectly aware, does not sound especially attractive to the casual reader; and, consequently we deem it best to give a few words of explanation. The trouble is that to entitle anybody a non-anything may suggest as an equivalent the phrase of "what's left over." The only reason for using this title to describe the men, who do not belong to any of the ten University fraternities, is the fact that we were compelled to distinguish them in some way; and since they do not divide themselves into clubs and wear pins with distinguishing Greek letters on them, the only name which includes them all is non-frat. And one further word of explanation: Absolutely the only reason which the non-frats have for occupying any space at all in the YACKERY YACK, or making any exactions upon its readers, is the fact that the fraternities have occupied so much. For all purposes, except those of the YACKERY YACK, their record speaks for itself and there is little cause for their blowing their own horn. And the purpose of this article, consequently, is not to do any unnecessary "tooting"; but simply in common justice to give those who are sufficiently interested to read this article—those of the outside public—an opportunity to understand who the non-frats are and what place they occupy in our University life. If the YACKERY YACK is to be a Pan-University Exposition, it will be prodigiously incomplete unless the non-frats are represented.

So much by way of explanation. Now, to tell you something about the non-frats. The first and the most important fact we have already led you to infer is this: that the term non-frat embraces practically every sort of man you can think of, certainly every type which the University presents. The only common characteristic is that they do not belong to any of the fraternities. Some, to be sure, would like to be in a fraternity; others, apparently, the fraternities would like to count among their members; but most are non-frats and do not attempt to organize themselves simply because, under existing circumstances, their ideas of life throw them upon that side of the fence. This then is the first thing to remember, that not any rigid test of merit, or attainment, or culture, divides frats and non-frats; but that the line is drawn by all sorts of individual circumstances such as friendship and preferences among the different phases of college life. The fraternities do not, from any point of view whatever, have entirely a "select" crowd any more than the non-frats. In the second place, another important fact to remember is that the non-frats are about three-fourths of the entire student body.

And they not only constitute a majority, numerically, but for most practical purposes—politically speaking—they are usually dominant in University politics.

Understanding then these two large facts, the only great question remaining concerns the part which the non-frats play in the different interests of the college life: in scholarship, in debate, in commencement honors, in athletics, in Y. M. C. A. work, in the literary field, and in social life. Our answer to this question will be brief, for it has been repeatedly and satisfactorily answered in previous YACKETY YACKS—so much so, in fact, that anything which we can say may sound obvious, and to that man who has been keeping up with the University life, parrot-like repetition and boasting.

We will content ourselves, therefore, with stating in a general way that in scholarship the non-frats, though as a rule not very well prepared, have at least their share of honors. In debating they hold the lion's share, and have held it for several years. In commencement honors, with special reference to the Mangum Medal, they have reason to be more than satisfied. In athletics they break even with their fraternity college mates. In Y. M. C. A. work the brunt falls upon them, with a few notable exceptions. As to the Magazine and the Tar Heel, although sometimes the editors may be elected largely from political considerations, generally, and certainly for the last two years, the non-frats have done the most of the work. The YACKETY YACK will have to answer for itself. In social life you find the non-fraternity man's weak point. This is true partly on account of tradition and precedent, partly because the fraternity is the organized expression of social life, and the man who has predominantly strong inclinations or instincts in that side of life usually joins a fraternity, and, incidentally, the German Club, etc. But we would not have you suppose that the non-frat is necessarily unfitted for social life, or that he does not enjoy it, or that he does not know how to go to a reception without breaking the china ware. He, at least does not think so. He seeks to express himself in other directions simply because tradition is too much for him.

So much for what the non-frat is and for what he does. If you come in contact with real University life, you do not need to be told about him. You will find out quickly enough. But the non-frats have no organization to speak for themselves, as a whole, in the YACKETY YACK. Consequently, to ward off any possible misconception, such as we suggested, this article has been written; and if the possible misconception has in any way been prevented, our sole purpose is accomplished.

THE Young Men's Christian Association is the religious organization of the University. Its purpose is to keep alive and strengthen the spiritual life of the student. When a man leaves home he thereby cuts asunder all of the home influences. The part which the Young Men's Christian Association plays is in surrounding this young man with wholesome influences, thus giving his religious life a chance to manifest itself in prayer, in song, in bible study, and in teaching in Sunday Schools. In short, our young friend finds himself both giving something to and receiving some spiritual uplift from this organization, of which he is a part. Service, the Association recognizes to be the highest form of worship. The work of the past year is a happy illustration of this.

The religious meetings during the past year have been thoroughly practical to college life. The three largest meetings were led by Mr. Fred. B. Smith, Prof. H. H. Williams, and Dr. C. Alphonso Smith. On November 17th, Mr. Smith, of New York, was secured to make an address. The meeting was one of the most wonderful ever held here. Over one hundred students stood up and asked for prayer. On December 3d, Prof. Williams spoke on the subject: "Is the Fraternity as an Organization Doing its Duty." The relation between the fraternities and other phases of student life was much helped by this thoughtful address. On January 12th, Dr. Smith spoke on "The Literary Attractions of the Bible." Nearly the whole student body heard this address. G. L. Paddison is chairman of the committee on meetings.

One of the strongest phases of Association work is seen in the Bible Study Department, of which department C. C. Barnhardt is chairman. The Association has six classes, led by students, which meet each Sunday for one hour of discussion. The work of this department is to encourage and direct daily systematic study of the Bible. The leaders in these courses are Messrs. E. S. W. Dameron, T. Grier Miller, W. H. Mann, C. C. Barnhardt, W. H. L. Mann, and W. B. Love.

Mr. J. B. Robertson has charge of the Association Sunday Schools near Chapel Hill. At the present time, the Association is directing three such schools: Rankin's Chapel, Clark's Spring Sunday School, and Orange Grove Sunday School. The men who teach are: Messrs. J. R. Hoffman, W. R. Haselden, J. S. McNider, R. C. Holton, E. S. W. Dameron, E. C. Herring, R. C. Day, E. E. Randolph, C. O. Abernethy, J. A. Parker, and Z. H. Rose. W. H. L. Mann directs the weekly meetings at the Chapel near the depot.

The Association held an educational rally and picnic last June at Clark's Spring. Mr. Chas. Ross made the address. This is the first picnic the people had ever held in that neighborhood. Last Christmas some Association men arranged a Christmas tree at Rankin's Chapel. Christmas exercises were also participated in at Clark's Spring. Several picnics and rallies are being planned for this Spring.

The University men go further than this in mission work. During the past year, under the direction of O. B. Ross, the members of the Association and several members of the faculty have contributed about seventy-five dollars to foreign missions. This amount was secured by systematic gifts averaging from ten to twenty cents a month. Messrs. E. McDonald, W. J. Gordon, and O. B. Ross have led classes studying foreign missions during the past year.

The musical side of the Association has been in charge of Mr. R. F. Leinbach. In February, Mr. C. T. Woollen organized a Y. M. C. A. Chorus of about fifty voices.

One thousand college directories, giving the names, class, and college address of every student in college, were issued by the Association last Fall.

Ten men represented the Association at the Southern Students' Conference at Asheville last summer. Every college of any importance in the South was represented, thus bringing together nearly three hundred students from all over the Southland. The University delegates were Messrs. J. K. Ross, G. P. Stevens, W. J. Gordon, R. M. Haper, E. S. W. Dameron, C. P. Russell, C. C. Barnhardt, O. B. Ross, T. Grier Miller, and R. O. Miller. The Conference will be held in the mountains of western North Carolina again this summer, June 10-20, and the Association expects to send a delegation of fifteen men to represent the University.

An Orange County Resident Relates An Experience.

WELL, seh, t'other day I went over t' Chapel Hill on a leetle biz'ness, an' afteh I got th'ough 'th it an' 'uz walkin' up an' daown th' street 'thout anything speshul t' dew, I kem across a cu'is lookin' sort o' pole set in front uv some kind o' 'stablishment thar, all kivered with red 'n' white stripes a-chasin' theyselves up 'n' daown like some sort o' snakes. I looked inside th'ough a winder an' seed niggers bendin' over fellers in chairs a-workin' over 'em with some kind uv instrement, an' I sez ter m'self: ' This here is tew much fer me. Dinged 'f I don't go inside 'n' see what 's goin' on.'

"I went up 'n' knocked, blam! blam! on the do', 'n' somebody sez: 'Come in.'

" I walked in with m' hands socked up tew th' elbows in mah pants-legs jist like I 'uz use ter them sort o' 'stablishments ever' day.

" Well, seh, a slick lookin' nigger 'ith a white coat on 'n' shiny shoes—had on a sight better clo'es 'n' I did—he slid up ter me an' sez: ' Do, sah? do, sah? walk right in an' have er rest, sah.'

" 'N' I sez: ' What kind uv 'stablishment is this, anyhow?'

" 'W'y, sah,' he sez, sezee, ' this is a barber shop. Want er shave, sah?'

" Then I sez: ' Uh-huh, I see: this here 's one o' them barber shops, is it? Uh-huh: I've hern tell 'v 'em.' 'N I reaches up 'n' felt 'v m' chin—'t wus feelin' kind o' scraggly—'n sez: ' This here 's whar you git shaved, is it? Uh-huh; waal, what do yew charge fer a shave?'

" ' Ten cents, sah,' he sez, sezee, ' on'y ten cents. Set right daown heah, sah, 'n I 'll fix yew up straight,' he sez, sezee.

" ' Waal,' sez I, ' I don't keer 'f I do,' 'n I set daown in one uv these here shiny red cheers thet turns araound in one place, yew know.

" Flap! sump'n sounded, 'n' I looked up jist in time ter see a gre't big white cloth comin' daown over m' head. ' Wait,' sez I, ' don't be puttin' no blindfolds on me. I'm goin' ter this thing th'ough.'

" Well, seh, you ort ter hern them dudes in thar laff—these here collidge boys, yew know, with their big-legged britches, an' little caps 'bout the size 'v a dollar set on a knot on the back sides 'v their heads.

“ ‘ Oh! thet 's all right, sah,’ says the nigger, sezee, ‘ I’m jist goin’ tew put it ‘raound yo, neck, sah.’

“ ‘ Oh, yew air, air yew?’ sez I, ‘ all right then, go ahead.’

“An’ he flopped the cloth ‘raound m’ neck ‘n’ pinned it behin’ with sump’n, jist like he ‘uz goin’ tew feed me on soup.

“Waal, I leaned m’ head back then an’, jist ez I ‘uz gittin’ comf’table, sump’n clicked an’ I felt m’self goin’ right on daown tew the flo’ back’ards! An’ with that, I jist raised up ‘n’ said: ‘ Look a-here, yew don’t stand folks on their heads tew shave ‘em, do yew?’ ‘N’ then them thar dudes in thar luffed agin.’

“ ‘ Naw, sah; naw sah,’ sez the nigger, sezee, ‘ I ‘uz jist leanin’ yew back whar I c’ud git tew yew,’ sezee.

“ ‘ Oh! all right then,’ sez I, ‘ go ahead.’

“He stirred sump’n ‘raound in a cup, took a brish ‘n’ gobbed m’ face all up with lather—filled m’ eyes ‘n’ ears ‘n’ nose ‘n’ mouth up good an’ tight.

“Then he took his razer an’ ‘scra-a-pe, scra-a-pe’ he went till I commenced gittin’ warm an’ comf’table ‘n’ sleepy.

“He scraped m’ chin off smooth; then he went over tew a strap hangin’ up thar ‘n’ hit it whack! whack! whack! with ‘is razer. Then he come back over tew whar I wuz, an’ whut dew yew reckon’ he done?

“He tuk hold uv m’ nose between ‘is tew fingers like this, waved ‘is razer ‘bout in the air wunst er twict an’, jist ez he ‘uz abaout tew take off m’ nose right clean even with m’ face, I riz up, th’owed out m’ hand so, an’ sez: ‘ Look out thar man; mind whut yew ‘re doin’ now. Why, man, that ‘s the d—— thing I breathes th’ough!’”

* * * * *

“Well, seh, I reckon’ you c’d a hern them fools in thar a-laffin’ clean up ter Hillsboro, but I th’owed the nigger a dime ‘n’ I ain’t been back in no barber shop sence.

A Ballade of Victory.

Loud swell the shouts and clangs the bell,
And in that sound what feelings mix---
The Tar Heels' pean, but the knell
That tolls Virginia o'er the Styx!
The luckless Freshman roars and kicks,
The gleaming bon-fire leaps in view;
The hoarse mob roars like lunatics—
“Victory to the White and Blue!”

With thundering drum and furious yell,
Our rooters hailed the Tar Heel bricks
As forth they rushed to break and quell
Virginia's pride—her team transfix.
Alas, what grief that team afflicts
Instead of palms to wear the rue!
Her flaunting flag the low dust licks:
“Victory to the White and Blue!”

Old Richmond town for long shall tell
How on November twenty-six
The Tar Heels gave Virginia h—,
And showed her proud eleven some tricks.
Your boasting 's o'er, poor derelicts,
And bitter is the pang to you
That our exultant shout inflicts—
“Victory to the White and Blue!”

Envoi.

Hail Carolina! Hail Victrix!
All honor to your team is due.
'Mid blazing stars your name we fix:
“Victory to the White and Blue!”

COACH CURRAN

Base Ball and Foot Ball.

THIS article, so brief as it must be, can not go into a detailed account of the work done by the base ball and foot ball teams during the Spring of '03 and the Fall of '04. Lynch, Brown's famous pitcher, said that Carolina's base ball team was the best team that Brown played against last Spring. This may have been a little exaggeration; but it is safe to say that the team was the best the South has seen turned out from any of its colleges in years. This team broke even with Brown; won from Georgetown, 13 to 4, and licked Virginia to the tune of 4 to 1. The man who taught this team how to play the game was none other than "Coach" Curran. He is here again, and we may justly look for something good again. His material was scarce when he called on his men in the beginning of February, but already the team is getting together, and the trained eye can see in these new men the possibility of a fine team, and before this shall appear in the YACKERY YACK Carolina's team will have made another splendid record. This, at least, is our earnest hope.

The '03 foot ball team played a peculiar game. It opened the season by making the best showing ever made by a Carolina team. Then the mid season playing was not up to the standard, but the final wind up was all that could be asked. A victory over Clemson and Virginia was all that the students could desire at the hands of their team, and this they had. Barring hard luck, Carolina would not have lost a single game; but the season was satisfactory anyway. The coaching was done by Olcott, the famous "coach" of '02. For two years our teams have not been excelled by any in the South, and let us trust that next year may bring us just as much success.

Track Athletics.

TRACK athletics at the University before the year 1897 were an unknown quantity and consisted only in a few occasional and desultory efforts. These efforts were confined exclusively to match races between individual students and students representing the different dormitories, and were arranged without previous preparation out of a friendly spirit of rivalry. In the Spring of the year 1897, however, this condition was changed by the completion of the cinder track which had been so kindly donated by Mr. Harry Lake, '98. This event, more than anything else, marks the real beginning of track athletics here as a branch of college sport. Not at once did it spring into prominence, but developed only gradually, restricting itself to meets between the classes. This state of affairs continued until the year 1900, when the first Varsity Track Team was organized. This team participated in the State Inter-collegiate Meet held at Horner School, Oxford, N. C., carrying off all the honors. The next year witnessed a still further advance in track work at the University. In May of this year, after a very close contest with Vanderbilt, Tulane, and Texas, the Varsity won the much coveted Southern Inter-collegiate Championship. The year 1902 was barren of results, for on account of complications and disappointments, there was a slump and no team was gotten out. Such a dormant condition could not be allowed to continue, and, so, in the Spring of 1903, a series of annual meets were arranged with the University of Virginia. The first of these meets was held on May 15th at Charlottesville. The result of this meet may be shown more clearly by the score than by words: Virginia, 56; North Carolina, 45. At the present time track athletics have reached the high-water mark and much interest is felt in all that pertains to them. This Spring, if schedules count for aught, should be counted the most successful of any that have preceded. Besides being represented at the Inter-collegiate Relay Races at the University of Pennsylvania, we have dual meets with A. & M. at Raleigh, with Johns Hopkins University at Baltimore, and for the second time with the University of Virginia at Charlottesville. Although they have had such a checkered career, the time is not far distant when track athletics at the University of North Carolina will hold an equal place with the now more popular sports—
A. L. C.

TENNIS at the University has always been, more or less, a matter of individual effort. There has never been a well-organized association; and the consequence has been the usual one attendant upon such a state of affairs. Of course, we have had champion games of tennis, as in every other sport; and it is not entirely out of our memory when Bryson and Bridgers won from Virginia. The players have always been here, but interest has been lacking.

The prospect for tennis at present, however, seems to be brighter. Every available court on the Campus is occupied and somebody has always got "next." Last Fall an enthusiastic little association was organized with forty members. Arrangements for new courts were made; and with the new gymnasium near, we hope to have tennis on a firmer footing.

Our first genuine tennis tournament was held last Fall and considerable interest was manifested. This Spring even a larger one will be held to choose the representative players, and several handsome prizes will be given.

Last Fall, after short practice, two of our players met Virginia at Charlottesville. Though they brought us back no cup, the result, considering the advantages in equipment, our rivals had, was not discouraging. Three matches were played, two in singles and one in doubles; all of which we lost. But if there is anything in the boast, "You had as well sear a man to death as to beat him," the defeat was not bad; for in the doubles we won more games than Virginia. However, we will meet our friendly rivals again this spring.

HON. SPRUNT NEWTON,
WILIE P. MANGUM, Speaker,
University North Carolina,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

MY DEAR SIR:

In compliance with your recent request we are sending you under "Personal" mark the speech (complete, properly gestured, punctuated, etc.), for which you wrote us. This speech we have been selling for 20 cents, but as this is the last copy we bill you for 15 only.

The fact that you have never made a "crack" speech is ample reason for you not buying more expensive matter.

Yours truly,

MR. SPRUNT NEWTON, ESQ.,
Chapel Hill, N. C.

DEAR SIR:—We are very sorry that the proof of the picture of yourself, to be used as a full-page advertisement in the "YACKETY YACK," was lost. We will request the Business Managers of the "YACKETY YACK" of 1905 to reserve a page in the ads. for your picture.

Yours very truly,
E. and Mc., Business Managers.

DR. F. P. VENABLE,

DEAR SIR:—As dealers in human curiosities, and hearing that you could put us on to something good in this line, we write to ask you if you will favor us with a few references.

Yours very truly,
THE FREAK COLLECTION CO.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., April 21, 1904.

THE FREAK COLLECTION CO.,
Ithaca, N. Y.

DEAR SIR:—In answer to yours of the 17th instant, would say that we think the following would be of use to you. Benjamin Booth: color, black; height, three feet; would prove an attraction as a "Human Cannon Ball"; could be fired from a cannon at an eight-inch armor plate without injury to his skull. We have an animated telegraph pole here named Jones. The finest rifle shot in America is in our midst. He can hit the left eye of a green colt at ninety thousand yards. He is very bashful, and would not let us give his name; but we can put you in communication with him if you use violet colored paper as a sign of secrecy. We are, also, so fortunate as to have with us a man that has not seen the ground in fifteen years—Lord Baskerville. Katzenstein, our dwarf, is two feet three, in his socks; and they are double heel and toe. There is a man coming here next year that can run a hundred yards up a sleet-covered hill, with an overcoat on, wheeling a wheelbarrow, in nine seconds—he might be useful to run errands for you.

Yours very truly,

F. P. VENABLE.

"I'm on the H₂O-Cart now,
I never drink any C₂H₅ OH now;
Keeley Cure and Carrie Nation,
Point to me with admiration,
For I'm on the H₂O-Cart now!"

Winners in H₂O-Cart races—held at Chapel Hill during Lent, 1904

"Skeet,"
"Freak,"
"Teeby,"
"Lengthy."

"Skeet" won the first race by a bottle neck. In the second race "Freak" fell from his seat; all the rest stopped to help him up. As soon as he was reseated he drove on before the others could mount, and thus won the race.

Race No. 3 was about a tie; but a lady was in the judge's stand, so, of course, "Teeby" won. In the next race there were many accidents. "Lengthy" drove over the monument and frightened his horse which was only stopped by Paul Jones, about four miles from the Canadian Club near the Old Rockbridge over Green River. Paul's friend Oscar Pepper, was standing by in Full Dress; the wheel of the H₂O-Cart struck him and tore some Schlitz in his clothes; but this experience has made Budweiser.

The Five Stages.

At 17 she said: "I want a man who is ardent in all of love's ways, and whose passionate devotion may never flag. He must be tall and broad (shoulders), and handsome, with dark flashing, soulful eyes! and, if need be, go to the ends of the world for my sake."

At 20 she said: "I want a man who unites the tender sympathy of a woman with the bravery of a lion. I do not mind his being a little disappointed, because that always adds a charm. He must be, however, accomplished to the last degree, and capable of any sacrifice for my sake."

At 25 she said: "I want a man who unites with an engaging personality, a complete knowledge of the world; and if, of necessity, he happens to have a past, he must also have a future: a man whom I can look up to, and with whom I can trust myself at all times without the slightest embarrassment."

At 30 she said: "I want a man with money. He can have any other attributes that a man ought to possess, but he must have money: and the more he has, the better I will like it."

At 35 she said: "I want a man."

"As idle as a painted ship upon a painted ocean"—Faison

"Does not my wit become me rarely?"—"Buff" Smith.

"All of the great men are dying and I dont feel very well myself"—"Babe" Pickard.

"He knew the taverns well in every town."—Tom Hill.

"His hair was weedy, his beard was long,

And stout and hairy was he."—R. G. Lewis

"His face would cook coffee."—"Sweeney" Wilson

"Oh! For a little rest!"—Yancey Graves.

"How long, O Lord, how long?"—"Shortie" Burwell

"To the barber with thy beard"—Joe Armstrong

"Ah, here's a chap as lean as Cassius' ghost,

A shadowy phantom of a thing called man"—"Lengthy" Jones

"I have in myself much that pleases me."—Marshall Staton

"He is fat and scant of breath"—Aycock

"Beauty nor brains had he"—"Sweeney" Wilson

"Rejoice ye; Nature formed but one such man and broke the die in moulding."—"Cute" Tomlinson.

"The soul of this man is his clothes."—Marshall Staton

“ The thief doth fear each bush an officer.”—Royal, Martin, Heide.

Major Cain (seriously)—“A fellow was doing some painting for me once, and what you reckon he asked me?”

“ Conics ” Class—Intensely pausing.

Major—“ He asked me what color I wanted my hen-house painted—and what you reckon I told him?”

Class—Silently bewildered.

Major—“ I told him I didn’t give a continental d— what color he painted it, so he painted it white!”

“ I would to God thou and I knew where a commodity of good names were to be bought.”—Katzenstein and Talliaferro.

“ I pray you write me down an ass.”—“ Ikey ” London.

The Younger Brutii—Pseudo “ Mike ” Lynch.

“ Why don’t the men propose, mamma,
Why don’t the men propose? ”—Co-cds.

The glass of fashion in a mould of form—McKim “Dear.”

Mr. Parker (approaching Mr. Graham on second English exam.)—“Mr. Graham, I played foot ball this year. I just thought I had better remind you of it.”

“Am I, or am I not? I am, or if I am not, what the deuce am I?”

Horace Williams.

“A self-made man? Yes: and worships his creator.”—Wm. Dunn, Jr.

And they said he looked like Napoleon.—Wm. Smith.

Chemistry Student—“Why is Charley like a box?”

Medical Student—“Because he is chesty.”

Prof. Howell (on Pharmacy Class)—“Mr. LeGwin, what kind of perfume should a man be indicted for using?”

LeGwin—“Any kind, sir.”

“Not Hercules could have knocked out his brains for he had none.”—Buck.”

Lee (making test in Chemistry III)—“Dr. Wheeler, where is the excess bottle? Somebody has moved it.”

Apgar and Sherman—Happy and Misery.

Mr. K. P. B. Cummings—Scene: Society Hall; Mr. Cummings on the floor; society applauding uproariously.

President (rapping for order)—“Any further applause will be considered as disorder. The hall must treat the speaker as if he were a gentleman.”

Moore, J. L., to Brown, R. M.—“I wouldn't be as little and spindly and narrow-chested as you are for all you know.”

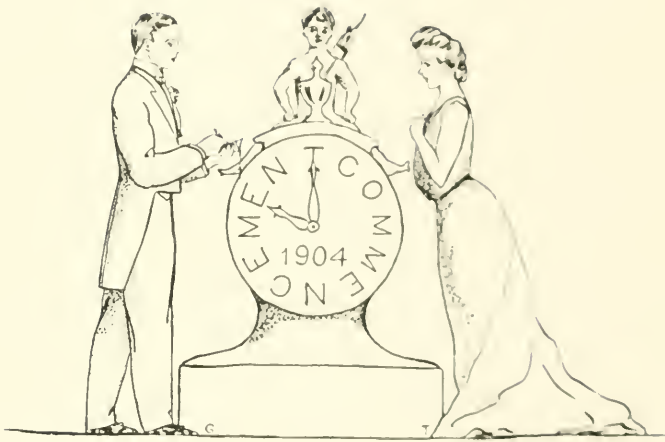

Brown—“Maybe not; but I wouldn't be as big and awkward and bull-headed as you are for all you think you know.”

Dr. Raper—“Mr. Council will tell us further— Show by illustration what you mean by capital and labor.”

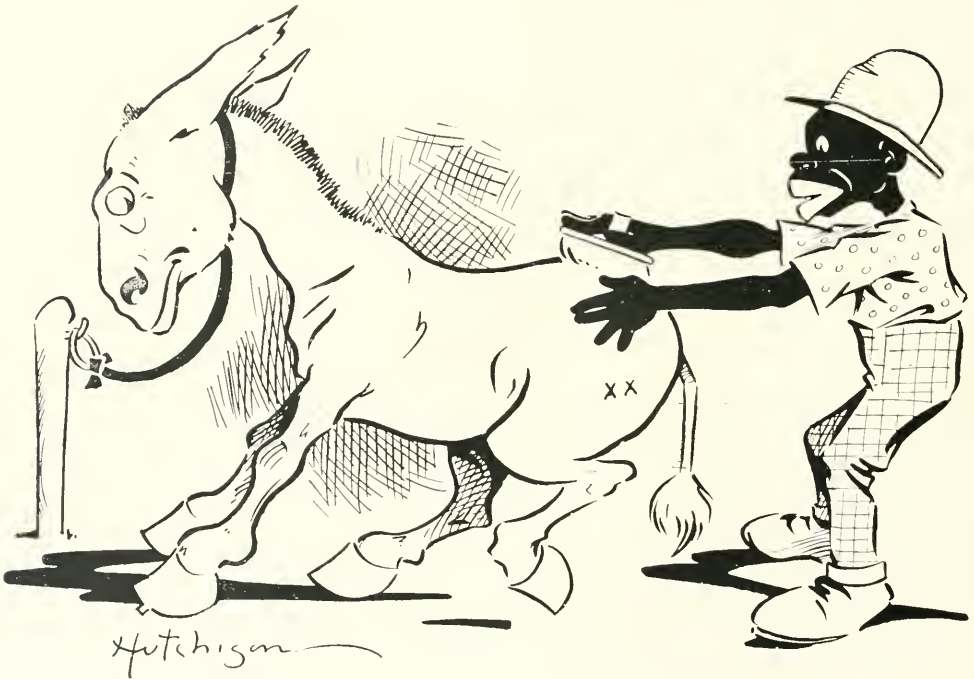

Council—“Well, sir, if I lend you a dollar—that's capital. And if I try to get it back—that's labor.”

Prof. Graham (assigning lesson in English II)—“Please be prepared on Shakespeare’s life and works: count all the words used in his works: don’t be satisfied with the statement that he has used fifteen thousand. Commit to memory the National Dictionary of Biography: be prepared to elucidate on any subject therein. Read carefully all the literature written in the English language to be found in the library. Take a cursory glance at the Latin and Greek classics in the original in order to see the relation between them and our English literature. As this is rather a short lesson, I would be glad to see you all go out and ‘whoop up’ the base ball team this afternoon.”

Our Aim : TO DRESS MEN PROPERLY

WE are Southern College, Professional and Business Men's Tailors. The Baltimore great fire not only destroyed a vast amount of old property and stock but swept away many old ideas. With the new Baltimore and its large handsome buildings will also come new and up-to-date ideas. Some of the best of these will be found in our new establishment, and we desire to assure our friends who have dealt with us in the past and those who will favor us in the future that they can place their utmost confidence in our ability to produce the best results in matter of dress. :: We are gradually adding new lines of men's furnishings and are now showing beautiful shirtings which are made to order. All goods will be sold at most reasonable prices and we earnestly solicit your patronage.
